Welcome to Tallinn!

A Tale of Two Tallinns

Charmingly Medieval or amazingly modern?

Figuring out which describes Tallinn better would be a tough job. On one hand, the city's pride and joy is its historic Old Town, an enchanting neighbourhood of centuries-old streets, houses, towers and squares, that looks like it was torn right from the pages of a storybook. On the other hand, threaded through that same Old Town and its environs are the cutting-edge restaurants, cafés and clubs that give Tallinn its energy and buzz. Visitors are often amazed by the newness of the place: the gleaming shops, the stylish interiors, the plush hotels. There are also the high-tech solutions that go hand-in-hand with Tallinn life, like free, wireless Internet available practically everywhere and the common practice of paying for parking by mobile phone. This is, after all, the country that invented Skype.

Call it old, new, or some kind of hybrid, Tallinn is an ideal city break destination. For one, it's a highly compact city, most of which can easily be explored on foot without the need for taxis or buses. Most of the best opportunities for sightseeing, cultural events, dining, shopping, and nightlife are conveniently massed in city centre. There's certainly plenty to do, but anyone coming here for a real break should know that Tallinn is also a great place to do very little: take a quiet stroll through a park, relax in a health spa or – if the weather cooperates – sit on a beach.

Whatever your agenda, whichever of the Tallinns you need – the romantic, Medieval Tallinn or the trendy, high-tech one – the doors are open. Just take your pick and head on in!

Exploring Tallinn

Go right ahead and gape. You'll be in good company – curious visitors have been awestruck by Tallinn ever since the city sprang up eight centuries ago. Steeped in Medieval charm, yet always on the cutting-edge of modernity, the city offers today's travellers plenty to see.

The Story of Tallinn

8,000–3,000 BC: Finno-Ugric ancestors of the Estonians migrate to Baltic coast.

11th–12th Centuries AD: Estonian clans use what's now the Tallinn area as marketplace and harbour; maintain wooden fortress on Toompea hill.

1154: Tallinn first mentioned in historic records by Arab cartographer Al-Idrisi.

1219: Danish forces capture Tallinn.

1227–1238: German merchant families from Gotland settle at the base of Toompea, sowing the seeds of Tallinn as a Germanic trade town.

13th–15th Centuries: City sees rapid growth as major trading point between East and West. In 1248, Tallinn adopts Lübeck Law, giving it self-governing status. In 1284 it joins the Hanseatic League.

1346: Danes sell their Estonian holdings to the Livonian Order.

1558–1583: During the Livonian War, Tallinn was attacked and besieged by the forces of Ivan the Terrible. Estonia ends up under Swedish rule.

1710: Great Northern War (1700–1721) leaves Estonia under Russian Empire. Tsar Peter the Great sets up summer estate in Kadriorg.

1860–1880: National Awakening gives Estonians a newfound sense of cultural identity.

1918: With World War I raging, Estonia declares independence on February 24.

1920s–30s: Independent Estonia establishes itself on world stage.

1940–1944: Red Army forces occupy and annex Estonia into U.S.S.R. Mass arrests and deportations follow. Nazi invasion in 1941 brings its own occupation and holocaust. U.S.S.R. reinvades in 1944, tens of thousands flee to Sweden by ship.

1945–1991: Soviet occupation, Estonia is cut off from the West.

1987–1988: The "Singing Revolution" – large-scale protests against Moscow rule in the form of traditional mass singing events.

1991: Estonia declares independence on August 20.

1990s: Economic transformation accompanied by widespread development of IT infrastructure. In 1997, Tallinn is entered on UNESCO's World Heritage List.

2004: Estonia joins the European Union and NATO.

2011: The country becomes 17th member of the Eurozone.

Tallinn took on its role as European Capital of Culture.

Medieval Old Town

Tallinn's Old Town

Twisting cobblestone lanes and iron street lamps. Gothic spires and Medieval markets. Cappuccino and Wi-Fi. This is the city's famous Old Town. If you're looking for that mix of historic ambience and cutting-edge culture that defines Tallinn, you'll find it here. Built up from the 13th to 16th centuries, when Tallinn was a thriving member of the Hanseatic trade league, this enclosed neighbourhood of colourful, gabled houses, half-hidden courtyards and grandiose churches is, quite rightly, the city's biggest tourist draw. And the fact that it's all neatly packaged within a mostly-intact city wall and dotted with guard towers gives it an extra dose of fairytale charm. In 1997, UNESCO acknowledged the importance of this unique area by adding it to its World Heritage List.

Town Wall & Towers

The power politics of the Middle Ages being what they were, Tallinn was constantly under threat of attack by one ambitious neighbour or another. The solution, starting in the 13th century, was to maintain a system of high, thick walls, guard towers and gates. Today 1.9km of the wall and roughly half of the original 46 towers still loom over Old Town, evoking images of heroic knights and damsels in distress. To learn more, see page 12.

Town Hall Square & Town Hall

Raekoja plats 1
www.tallinn.ee/raekoda

Picturesque Town Hall Square has been the undisputed hub of Old Town for the last eight centuries. Surrounded by elaborate merchant houses and, in summer, packed with café tables, it's a natural magnet for tourists. Historically it served as a market and meeting place, and was the site of at least one execution (resulting from a dispute over a bad omelette). Find the round stone marked with a compass rose in the middle of the square. From this spot, with a little stretching and bending, you can see the tops of all five of Old Town's spires. Dominating the square's east side is the Town Hall, built in 1402–1404 as the headquarters for the ruling burgermeisters. Today it's Northern Europe's only intact – and best-preserved – Gothic town hall. Look closely at the top of the 64-metre spire to see a weather vane in the shape of Old Thomas, the mustachioed Tallinn mascot.

OLD THOMAS, THE TOWN'S FAVOURITE GUARD

Back in the days of yore, an archery contest was held each spring to see who could shoot a wooden parrot off the top of a high pole. It was a serious annual tradition, reserved exclusively for the men of noble families. One year, so the legend goes, none of the contestants was able to hit the target. A plucky boy called Thomas was in the crowd. He was from a poor family, but had learned archery from a young age. Urged on by his friends, he gave it a shot, hit the parrot, and immediately got into trouble. But instead of having his ears boxed as his mother expected, he was made an apprentice guard. Thomas eventually became an expert soldier, performing many heroic deeds during the Livonian War and serving with distinction to a rifle old age. Years later locals noticed that Town Hall's weather vane, which is shaped like a soldier with a bushy moustache, looked a lot like their hero guard and started calling it Old Thomas in his honour. Nowadays Old Thomas, as legend and weather vane, is a much-loved symbol of Tallinn.

St. Catherine's Passage & Masters' Courtyard

Vene 12 • www.katariinagild.ee
Vene 6 • www.hoov.ee

Easily the most photogenic of Old Town's lanes, St. Catherine's runs between Vene and Mürivahe streets, along the back of what was St. Catherine's Church. The street is home to the St. Catherine's guild, a collection of craft shops where artists create and sell hats, quilts, ceramics, hand-painted silk and other wares. Not far from here is the beautifully restored Masters' Courtyard where handicrafts, jewellery and chocolate confections are sold.

Town Hall Pharmacy

Raekoja plats 11 • www.raeapteek.ee

Open since as far back as 1422, this curious little shop on the corner of Town Hall Square is in fact the oldest continuously running pharmacy in Europe. Medieval remedies like burnt bees and powdered unicorn horn have been replaced by their 21st-century counterparts, but one room in the back displays a collection of medicinal bric-a-brac from bygone days.

St. Olav's Church

Lai 50 • www.oleviste.ee

Once upon a time, from 1549 to 1625 to be precise, this 14th-century Gothic church was the tallest building in the world. In Medieval days its 159-metre spire would have made it a truly inspiring sight. Sadly it also made an excellent lightning rod, and the resulting fires burned the church to the ground in 1625 and in 1820.

At 124 metres, the current spire still towers over Old Town, and in spring and summer daring visitors can climb up for an amazing view.

St. Nicholas' Church

Niguliste 3 • www.nigulistemuuseum.ee

Saints, dancing skeletons and silver – not to mention the occasional organ concert – are the main attractions at this imposing, 13th-century church. Destroyed in a World War II bombing raid, it was painstakingly reconstructed in the 1980s. Nowadays St. Nicholas' acts as a museum specialising in works of religious art, most famously Bernt Notke's beautiful but spooky painting Danse Macabre (Dance with Death).

Holy Spirit Church

Pühavaimu 2 • www.eelk.ee/tallinna.puhavaimu

Just off Town Hall Square stands a radiant, white church with an octagonal tower. This is the 14th-century Holy Spirit Church, a spectacular structure both inside and out. The elaborate painted clock on its facade is Tallinn's oldest public timepiece, but don't miss the carved wood interior and 15th-century altar painted by Bernt Notke.

Dominican Monastery

Vene 16 • www.kloostri.ee

You won't be blamed for imagining if you can hear monks chanting as you wander through the corridors of St.

Catherine's Monastery. Established in 1246, this is Tallinn's oldest intact building. Its beautiful courtyard can be accessed through the yard of the adjacent Peter and Paul Roman Catholic Church. To see the inner rooms, visit the Claustum on Müürivahe street.

Horse Mill

Lai 47

The funny, round building at the end of Lai street served a vital function from the 14th to the 18th centuries – it was the town's horse-driven flour mill. Now it operates as a venue for concerts and plays.

MARZIPAN OR MART'S BREAD

Historians might tell you that marzipan, that sweet confection made from almonds and sugar, comes from Persia or Italy, but local legend insists the delicacy was invented right here at Tallinn's Town Hall Pharmacy. Long ago, so the story goes, a town alderman fell ill and summoned the apothecary to prescribe a cure. The expert apothecary knew an elaborate formula he was certain would work, but the alderman insisted that the apothecary test the medicine on himself. As fate would have it, the apothecary caught a nasty cold, so the preparation (and guinea pig) duty fell to his young apprentice, Mart. Being a clever lad, Mart replaced each bitter ingredient with a sweet one. Not only did the tasty remedy work, but the alderman loved it so much that he ordered it in large quantities and made it famous throughout Tallinn and beyond. The sweet bread-like confection became known as Mardileib, or Mart's bread.

Kalev Marzipan Room

Pikk 16 • www.kalev.eu

In this historic shop combined with museum, you'll learn about Tallinn's love affair with marzipan and see some of the most intricate marzipan creations. On display are close to 200 marzipan figures and a century old Georg Stude marzipan forms.

History Museums

Old Town itself often feels like one big, living museum, but the area has plenty of actual museums to help visitors put what they're seeing into proper context. Below are some museums in Old Town that chronicle various aspects of Tallinn's past. For a complete list of museums throughout the city, see page 52.

Estonian History Museum – Great Guild Hall

Pikk 17 • www.gjaloomuuseum.ee

This extensive museum presents Estonia's history from prehistoric times right up to the end of the 20th century. Films and interactive displays show how people here lived, fought and survived over the last 11,000 years. The museum is housed in the 15th-century Great Guild Hall, itself a spectacular relic of Tallinn's past. Estonian History Museum has another branch at Maarjamäe Palace (see page 16).

Estonian Maritime Museum

Pikk 70 • www.meremuuseum.ee

In one of Tallinn's main defense tower, Fat Margaret, you'll find the Estonian Maritime Museum, where you can learn everything you need to know about Tallinn's nautical past. Ancient diving equipment, antique maps, models of ships and the like fill its four floors. Be sure to climb to the roof for a great view of the city and port.

TALLINNCITY MUSEUM

Town Prison – Museum of Photography

Raekoja 4/6 • www.linnamuuseum.ee

In Medieval times this building was used as a prison. Now it's a museum covering Estonian photography from 1840 to 1940. Displays include an early 20th-century darkroom, fascinating old photos of Tallinn, and hundreds of antique cameras, including a 1930s-era Minox, designed in Estonia.

Museum of Occupations

Toompea 8 • www.okupatsioon.ee

This modern museum on the border of Old Town is the first in the nation dedicated to the 1939–1991 time period, during which Estonia was occupied briefly by the Germans, and for a longer time by the Soviet Union. Audio-visual displays, photos and sound recordings highlight the events of the era, repression and popular resistance, as well as showing how ordinary people coped with the day-to-day realities of this difficult period.

GHOST STORIES OF OLD TOWN

Spooks, ghosts, haunts... whatever you call them, if the stories are to be believed, Tallinn is positively infested with things that go bump in the night. Old Town even has a ghost street (Vaimu), which residents centuries ago thought was haunted. More recent tales – coming from as late as the 1990s – tell of spectral nuns in the Gustav Adolph's Gymnasium and a monk-like figure who could be seen drinking wine in the Maiden's Tower. The nearby Short Leg Gate Tower probably takes the prize for the most reported incidents: through the years there have been countless sightings of a pair of monks, a woman in old-fashioned dress, and even a spectral dog. Old Town's most famous haunted house stands at Rataskaevu 16, where legend insists that the Devil once held a wedding party. In any case, for centuries the location has been connected with unexplained, late-night party noises and in the last few years, mysterious, thundering footsteps on its wooden staircase.

Viewing platforms

In the old days the nobles living on Toompea hill would look down – both literally and figuratively – on the merchants and artisans living in the town below. Now so can you. Two viewing spots in particular, the Kohtu street and Patkuli platforms, give sweeping panoramas of Old Town's rooftops, towers and beyond. From the Kohtu street platform there's an unforgettable view of the city's Medieval neighbourhood against the backdrop of its new financial district. The Patkuli platform, on the other hand, offers the best vantage point to see Tallinn's fairy tale city wall and towers, as well as St. Olav's Church and the harbour. From Patkuli a winding series of steps leads down the cliff face to Nunne street, below.

TALLINN'S TWO LEGS

Old Town is divided into two distinct parts: Lower Town and Toompea hill. Connecting these areas are two picturesque streets known as Tallinn's two 'legs', i.e. Pikk jalg (Long Leg street) and Lühike jalg (Short Leg street). Most visitors prefer to climb up to Toompea on one of these 'legs' and return to Lower Town on the other.

In days of old, the long, straight Pikk jalg was the passageway for carriage traffic heading to and from Toompea. It starts at the four-storey Long Leg Gate Tower, which dates to 1380, and ends at the striking, onion-shaped domes of the St. Alexander Nevsky Cathedral. One of the walls that flanks Pikk jalg has become a favourite spot for local artists selling their sketches and paintings.

The much narrower, winding Lühike jalg used to be the main way to get to and from Toompea by foot. This curious, little lane, most of which is taken up by a set of stairs, is home to a number of small art shops, as well as a museum and a café. At the top of the street stands the Short Leg Gate Tower, which was built in 1456 and is reputed to be one of the most haunted buildings in Old Town. The tower was extensively rebuilt in the 1980s, but the huge, 17th-century wooden door you'll pass here is original.

Toompea Castle & Pikk Hermann Tower

Lossi plats 1 • www.riigikogu.ee

Toompea Castle has been seat of power in Estonia since the German Knights of the Sword built the first stone fortress here in 1227-29. Even these days it's home to the nation's Parliament (Riigikogu). Most visitors' first view is the pink, Baroque palace dating to the time of Catherine the Great. Go around back, down the hill to the left, for a more Medieval view. From below, the castle takes on a much more fortress-like appearance. Standing at the southwest corner of Toompea Castle is the Pikk Hermann (Tall Hermann) Tower, a vital symbol of Estonian nationhood. Originally built in 1371, it reached its current, 46m height after reconstruction in 1500. Because it's the castle's tallest tower, there has always been an accepted wisdom that whichever power flies its flag here rules Estonia. In 1989, the Estonian blue, black and white replaced the Soviet flag on Pikk Hermann for the first time, a key symbolic victory for the independence movement. Nowadays the Estonian flag is raised here each morning to the tune of the national anthem.

Cathedral of St. Mary the Virgin

Toom-Kooli 6 • www.eelk.ee/tallinna.toom

The more common name for this gleaming, white church on Toompea is "Toomkirik" (Dome Church) and it's now the main Lutheran church in Estonia. Established sometime before 1233 (and rebuilt several times), it was the church of the elite, German nobility. Inside you'll find their coats of arms, and tombs.

LEGEND OF DANNEBROG

A well-known legend, both in Estonia and Denmark, holds that the Danish flag, the Dannebrog, originated on this very spot, in what's now called the Danish King's Garden. According to the story, Valdemar's forces were losing their battle with the Estonians when suddenly the skies opened and a red flag with a white cross floated down. Taking this as a holy sign, the Danes were spurred on to victory.

ANDRÉS TREJAL

Danish King's Garden

Lühike jalg 9A

On one slope of Toompea hill, between the city wall and Lower Town, you'll find an open, garden-like area and a terraced set of steps that lead down to a courtyard on Rütli street. This relaxing spot was supposedly where King Valdemar II of Denmark and his troops camped before conquering Toompea in 1219.

TOOMSKVOLUMER

St. Alexander Nevsky Cathedral

Lossi plats 10 • www.hot.ee/nsobor

One piece of Old Town architecture that seems out of place here among its Medieval neighbours is the colourful, very Russian-looking, onion-domed church that lords over the city from atop Toompea hill. Most Estonians aren't thrilled about the church due to its placement and early political significance: it was established here in 1900 as a symbol of Tsarist power over the Estonian people, who at the time were starting to make noises about independence. Now the cathedral is the main place of worship for Estonia's Russian Orthodox faithful.

The Pikk Street Guilds

From the 14th century onwards, much of life in Tallinn was controlled by powerful merchant and craft guilds, associations that not only regulated trade in certain spheres, but also had a role in local politics and social life. Today the guild houses along Pikk street stand as testaments to the prowess of these organisations, and also represent some of the most eclectic architecture in Old Town.

House of the Brotherhood of Black Heads

Pikk 26 • www.mustpeademaja.ee

The Brotherhood of Black Heads gets its odd name from the fact that its patron saint, Mauritius, was a dark-skinned Moor. This guild of unmarried German merchants was responsible for organising the town's defenses as well as its spring festivals. The beautiful Renaissance facade dates to 1597, and the much-photographed red, green and gold door dates to 1640. Today Tallinn Philharmonic Society operates here.

Great Guild Hall

Pikk 17 • www.ajaloomuuseum.ee

It's no surprise that this hulking, gabled hall with its gigantic porch and lion's head door knockers belonged to the Great Guild. It was at the top rung of the guild ladder in terms of power and wealth. Members, who had to be married German merchants, controlled the Town Council. The building, which dates to 1410, now houses the Estonian History Museum (see page 9).

ARBO TALMANSKAR

Kanut Guild Hall

Pikk 20 • www.saal.ee

The Kanut Guild was made up of skilled craftsmen from various trades. Though the building is much older, its facade dates to 1863–64 and is done in an English, Tudor style, with statues representing St. Kanut and Martin Luther. The hall is now a modern dance theatre. Directly across the street, high atop the Baroque facade, you'll see the odd figure of a man wearing old-fashioned spectacles. Legend insists that the "Peeping Man" was put there by a jealous wife – a warning to the ladies practising dance in the guild hall that her husband was watching them.

St. Olav's Guild Hall

Pikk 24

St. Olav's Guild united those practising what were considered the lower-class trades – butchers, tanners, gravediggers – who were by and large Estonian. They used this hall from the 14th century, but in 1919 it was bought by, and merged with, the Black Heads' house next door.

Tallinn's Fortification System

Medieval forts, which first appeared during the early development of the Medieval city in the latter 13th century, surrounded the downtown to create a close-off defense zone. Constant additions and improvements meant that, by the 16th century, Tallinn boasted one of the most powerful and strongest defence systems in Northern Europe.

Tallinn's Medieval city wall at its mightiest around 1530. From then on, due to development of firearms, the wall lost its importance and began to slowly decay. Portions of the wall still visible today are marked yellow.

Sweden ruled Estonia from the late 1500s to 1710, during which it put a lot of work into improving Tallinn's defenses. In addition to strengthening the city wall and its towers, builders installed secret tunnels around the bastions.

These days 1.9km of the wall still stands, as do 20 defensive towers and portions of two of the six outer gates. The best places to see the wall are the Patkuli view platform on Toompea and the Tornide väljak (Towers Square), a park area near the train station. Many towers are also open to the public.

THE OLD MAN OF THE ÜLEMISTE LAKE

When you're here in Tallinn, if a mysterious old man approaches you and asks whether the city is finished yet, your answer had better be an emphatic "no." One of Tallinn's oldest legends tells of the Ülemiste Vanake, the old man from Lake Ülemiste, which sits on the outskirts of town. One dark night each autumn he rises from the lake, knocks on the city gates and asks, "Is the city finished yet, or is there still work being done?"

The guards have strict orders to answer no, there's still loads of construction going on and it'll probably be years before it's ready. The disappointed old man then turns and leaves, grumbling all the way back to the lake. The belief was that if the answer were ever yes, the old man would call up the waters of the lake and wipe out the city in a great flood. Luckily, despite ups and downs in the local economy, there's always some construction going on in Tallinn so the city is safe from the old man for the time being.

Fat Margaret's Tower – Great Coastal Gate

Pikk 70 • www.meremuuseum.ee

This fat, sturdy defense tower was built from 1511 to 1530 to protect Tallinn from attacks by sea, but it was also part of the older Great Coastal Gate, now the town's last intact outer gate. Fat Margaret's has become home to the Estonian Maritime Museum.

Kiek in de Kök

Komandandi tee 2 • www.linnamuuseum.ee

Those interested in walls, towers, cannons and the like should drop into this museum of the town's defenses. The name of this 38m tower means "peep into the kitchen," since it was so high that guards joked they could see right down the chimneys of the houses below. It was built in the 1470s, but quickly expanded and strengthened, giving it walls up to 4m thick. This museum is also the starting place for visitors who want to tour the tunnels hidden under Toompea.

Bastion Tunnels

Komandandi tee 2 • www.linnamuuseum.ee

The Bastion Tunnels can be only visited by guided tours held Tuesday to Sunday. On the tunnel tour, visitors can see some of the old equipment leftover from that era, as well as parts of the tunnel that still retain their more Medieval look. The tour includes a slow-moving train ride, where guests are shown the various stages of the tunnels' past, and even a few decades into their possible future. Booking well in advance is highly recommended.

Nunna, Sauna & Kuldjala Towers

Gümnaasiumi 3

One of the few sections of the wall that's open to the public can be found here on Suur-Kloostri street. From the entrance in the Nunna Tower you can walk along the wall to the Sauna Tower and the Kuldjala Tower. Views from here are amazing.

Maiden's Tower

Lühike jalg 9A • www.linnamuseum.ee

This three-storey Town Wall tower was first mentioned in 1373. It has many ghost stories to tell as it has been in use as a prison, residential house and city café. The renovated tower opens in 2013 as museum and café.

Viru Gates

The two small, round towers at the bottom of Viru street are called the Viru Gates, but they're actually only the foregates of what was a much more complex gate system that was pulled down in the 1880s to make room for traffic. The remaining two towers, covered in vines, have become a symbol of the town.

Medieval arms and armour are the focus of the hands-on displays in this skinny, six-storey tower, a great place to try on chain mail or handle replica swords.

Hellemann Tower

Müürivahe 48 • www.hellemann.ee

A visit to this three-storey tower next to Old Town's knit market also gives visitors a chance to walk along a 200-metre stretch of the wall. Dating to the 14th century, it has been used as a prison and a weapons store, but nowadays houses an art gallery.

Most of the bastions in the Tallinn defence system had tunnels built into them.

Under the City

Like any respectable Medieval town, Tallinn has its share of underground passageways, particularly the defensive tunnel systems built in the 1600s during the time of Swedish rule. Back then attack was a constant worry, so planners constructed high bastion walls around the outside of the fortified city. They also installed tunnels under the base of the walls so they could safely move soldiers and ammunition to where they were needed, not to mention spy on the enemy.

Some tunnels were forgotten. As late as 2003, workers digging a foundation near the Museum of Occupations found a pentagonal system of limestone-lined tunnels dating to the end of the 17th century.

Other tunnels have always been well known, in particular the ones that run underneath Harju Hill and Linda Hill at the edge of Toompea, which are open for tours. These tunnels have a fascinating history: they were built in the 1670s, but hardly used until the 20th century when they renovated into bomb shelters in time for World War II. During the Soviet period they were further modernized to add electricity, running water, ventilation and phones.

Kadriorg

Kadriorg is a quiet, leafy area within easy walking distance of Old Town. After Russian emperor Peter the Great conquered the Baltics in the early 1700s he established an estate and public park on this spot. He named the area Ekaterinental (Catherine's valley, or Kadriorg in Estonian) after his wife, Catherine I. The elaborate Baroque palace he had built – along with the surrounding forests, ponds and fountains – are still the neighbourhood's prime draw. Over the next two centuries the streets near the park became lined with ornate wooden mansions as Kadriorg developed into the upscale residential district that it remains today.

Creative-minded visitors should note that Kadriorg is also home to the nation's best art museums – all the more reason it's a great place for a Sunday stroll.

Kadriorg is also the birth place of Estonia's spa culture. In 1813 Georg Witte opened the first seaside spa here.

Standing at the centre of Kadriorg is the stunning, Northern Baroque palace that Peter the Great had built as a summer residence in 1718. To experience the full measure of the imperial grandeur here you should visit the manicured garden in back, but in any case drop into the inside, now home to the foreign art branch of the Estonian Art Museum.

Surrounding the palace is the vast Kadriorg Park, the best place in town for pigeon feeding and life pondering. Crisscrossed with paths and dotted with statues, it positively dominates the neighbourhood. A good stopping spot is the rectangular Swan Pond, with its fountain, gazebo and nearby cafés. An uphill stroll from here leads past flower beds to another fountain area. In recent years the park has received additions in the form of the Japanese garden and rainwater channels system. The park celebrates its 295th anniversary in 2013.

The grounds feature an outdoor concert arena, built in 1959, a number of indoor halls, and host a multitude of large concerts and festivals through the year. Most famously the site is home to the Estonian Song and Dance Celebration, an unforgettable event that takes place every five years, drawing together up to 30,000 performers and 200,000 spectators. Next to the concert arena is the 42-metre Song Grounds Light Tower, opened for visitors all year long upon request.

Pirita

A little farther down the shoreline from Kadriorg is the Pirita district. With its 3km stretch of sand beach and a yachting harbor, Pirita is best known as a centre for summer frolicking. A quieter way to enjoy the area is to head across the road to the Pirita River delta, where row boats, canoes and water bicycles can be rented. Pirita is also worth visiting for its own bit of Medieval architecture – the ruins of St. Bridget's Convent.

Pirita Beach

Pirita beach is by far the largest and most popular in Tallinn – during summer it can attract up to 30,000 visitors a day. The 2km-long beach has a magnificent view of Old Town and the busy sea traffic on the Gulf of Finland. Here you'll find ball courts, playgrounds for children, lockers, chaise lounges and water sport equipment rental.

Pirita Promenade

A long-time favourite of pedestrians, cyclists and skaters alike, this 2km paved pathway stretches along the waterfront from Kadriorg to Pirita offers by far the most spectacular views of the Tallinn's rocky shoreline with the Old Town cityscape in the distance.

TALLINNZOO

Spread across an 87-hectare swathe of forested land, the zoo boasts one of Northern Europe's best collections. The list of its residents includes rhinos, vultures, camels, polar bears, pythons, lions, bison and dozens of other species. You can visit the crocodiles and chimpanzees in the Tropical House, or make your way over to the Elephant House to see a pigmy hippo, a chinchilla, various snakes and, of course, an elephant.

The zoo happens to have one of the best collections of mountain goats and sheep in the world, but its real stars are its incredibly rare Amur leopards; only 30 to 35 of these animals still exist worldwide.

Kids will love the petting zoo, which operates here June to August, open Wed – Sun. Group tours in English and other foreign languages can be arranged with prior booking.

Kalamaja

Architecture and history buffs or anyone who wants to get a feel for the grittier edge of Tallinn's art scene should pay a visit to Kalamaja, one of the so-called 'wooden house districts' that covers the northern part of the city. This quiet neighbourhood, just beyond the main railway station, has long been known for its colourful hodgepodge of old fashioned, working-class houses. Recently it has also taken on a Bohemian atmosphere, becoming the residence of choice for young, creative types.

Throughout most of Tallinn's history Kalamaja served as the town's main fishing harbour. In fact, 'Kalamaja' literally means 'fish house' in Estonian. Starting from the 14th century the area was traditionally dominated by fishermen, fishmongers and boat wrights.

Everything changed in 1870, however, when Tallinn was connected to St. Petersburg by railroad. Suddenly enormous factories started to sprout up in this part of the town, and they brought with them an influx of thousands of new workers.

The wooden houses built to accommodate these workers became Kalamaja's architectural legacy and are now what gives neighbourhood its unforgettable charm. The most architecturally unique of these are called 'Tallinn Houses'. Built in the 1920s and 30s, these two- to three-storey apartment houses are made of two symmetrical wooden wings separated by a stone central staircase. There are about 500 of these in the city today.

Seaplane Harbour is only 20 min walk away from the city centre. The best way to walk there is to use the Culture Kilometre that starts by the Estonian Design House.

Nõmme

Just inside the city limits at the south-western edge of Tallinn is an area that couldn't be any farther removed from the bustle and glass high-rises of the metropolis. Nõmme, a quiet, forested district filled with 1920s- and 30s-era houses, has the feel of a small country town. It boasts its own historic centre complete with a farmers' market, cafés and pubs, and it even has its own castle of sorts, not to mention a number of other attractions.

If Nõmme feels like a village that's completely detached from the rest of the city, there's good reason – before being absorbed into Tallinn in 1940, it was just that. The area owes its existence to the Baltic-German landowner, Nikolai von Glehn (1841–1923), who not only succeeded in turning his Tsarist-era estate into a real town, but also earned a reputation for being somewhat eccentric. He was, after all, practically giving away land and the castle-shaped manor house he had built flew in the face of convention.

The castle, situated about 2km east from the Nõmme centre, was the home of Nikolai von Glehn, the founder of Nõmme. The Medieval Swiss-style castle itself, completed in 1886, can only be viewed from the outside, but the vast, surrounding area is well worth exploring. Right in front of the castle is the so-called Palm House, a garden grotto with an other worldly feel. More bizarre features von Glehn had installed in the park are an enormous, granite crocodile and a towering, granite statue of Estonia's mythical hero, Kalevipoeg. A particularly beautiful spot on the grounds is the von Glehn family cemetery, where Nikolai's wife Carolina Henriette Marie and grandchildren are buried. The stairs adjacent the castle lead down to a meadow which is crisscrossed by trails, perfect for walking or jogging in summer and skiing in winter.

Soviet Legacy

At the end of World War II, Soviet forces were firmly in control of Estonian territory. The country had been absorbed, at gunpoint, into the USSR. The half-century period of occupation that followed left an indelible mark, not only on the national psyche, but also on the architecture and layout of Tallinn. Most of the Soviet monuments are from the Stalin era 1940s and 50s, but there are also some from the 80s when the Moscow Summer Olympics brought the sailing competition to Tallinn. The Viru Hotel is a legend in its own way, it marked the first break-through of the western world in Estonia.

The most feared building in Soviet times was Pikk 59, the Tallinn headquarters of the KGB. Here perceived enemies of the state were processed and interrogated before being shot or sent to Siberia. Here began the road to suffering for thousands of Estonians." The building today houses luxury apartments.

Everyday buildings from Soviet times can be seen all over Tallinn – entire residential districts were built from scratch in the 60s, 70s and 80s. The Stalinist era most prestigious residential milieus are on Koidu street, Kassisaba area and Asula street. The 1980s Olympic games that brought the sailing regatta to Tallinn brought the building of the Olympic venues and other projects that have expanded the city to Pirita area and are visible even today. Major buildings are from that era include; the newly renovated Tallinn Airport, the Olümpia hotel (now Radisson Blu Hotel Olümpia), Tallinn TV Tower and Olympic sailing centre at Pirita. ## Freedom Square: A Modern Gathering Spot

Freedom Square (Vabaduse väljak), an open area at the edge of Old Town, has traditionally been a place of national symbolism and civic pride. Thanks to major construction in 2009, it's now a sophisticated spot to relax, filled with benches and cafés, and faced by two art galleries.

The buildings around Freedom Square are hodgepodge of architectural styles. Here you'll see evidence of the city's 1930s-era building boom, with art-deco and functionalist buildings flanking two sides of the square. The area is also home to the bright, yellow, neo-gothic St. John's Church, built here in the 1860s. The large pillar with the cross that dominates the west side of the square is the Monument to the War of Independence, fought from 1918 to 1920.

To get a glimpse of the square's older history, just look down. A glass panel in the street on the northwest corner of the square reveals the foundation and stairs of the Harju Gate Tower that stood here in Medieval times.

The Rotermann Quarter

To see where Tallinn is heading in the 21st century, take a stroll through the Rotermann Quarter, a former factory complex that sits between Old Town and the Passenger Port. What was a collection of dilapidated buildings just a decade ago is now a commercial centre, whose avant-garde architecture stands as a powerful symbol of just how far Tallinn has come in re-inventing itself in recent years.

The area's biggest project is the Rotermann Centre, a trendy shopping and food zone opened in 2007. The centre is made up of both cleverly revamped, 19th century factory buildings and modern structures, which gives it a completely unique appearance. In between its shops and restaurants is a central square that's home to open-air activities.

There's also the striking Rotermann Salt Storage building nearby, which houses the Museum of Estonian Architecture, and in summer the former flour warehouse is the site of an exhibit of Soviet-era relics.

Music, Estonian style

It's impossible for Estonians to talk about music, particularly choral music, without waxing nostalgic about our history. This is, after all, the country of the 1988 "Singing Revolution." Choral singing and Estonian identity became connected as far back as the mid-19th century when the first nationwide Song Festival was held. Even today Estonia's most renowned composer, Arvo Pärt, orients most of his work toward choral music, though his minimalist style is radically different from the tunes our grandparents sang. To hear his works first hand, try to catch a performance by the Estonian Philharmonic Chamber Choir, or pick up one of their CDs in a shop.

Jazzkaar International Jazz Festival

KUUSTEERIK

Estonian Song and Dance Celebrations

Ask any Estonian what it means to be Estonian, and the first idea that will leap into his or her mind will be the Estonian Song and Dance Celebration. These massive folk gatherings, involving thousands of colourfully-dressed performers from all over Estonia and abroad, have helped define the nation's spirit ever since the days of the first Estonian Song Celebration in 1869. In the 20th century the celebration developed into a regular cultural phenomenon, and is now held once every five years.

A separate Youth Song and Dance Celebration was introduced in the early 1960s to accommodate the huge numbers of youth choirs and dance groups that wanted to participate. It's held on separate years from the main celebration, but is every bit as spectacular.

The next nationwide Song and Dance Celebration takes place in Tallinn from July 4 to July 6, 2014.

ESTONIA

National Opera Estonia

Estonia pst 4 • www.opera.ee • www.concert.ee

The "Estonia" house will hold a festival to celebrate its centenary in September 2013. The Jugend-classical theatre building designed by Finnish architects Armas Lindgren and Wivi Lönn was the largest building in the early 20th century Tallinn. One side of the two-wing building was always intended to be a theatre and the other a concert hall. During the World War I, the theatre building operated as a military hospital. On April 23, 1919 the first Estonian assembled in the concert hall of the "Estonia" theatre. A new era began in the history of the theatre and the whole country. The building was renovated in the second half of 1940s according to the designs by Alar Kotli and Edgar Johan Kuusik.

Art & Design

Artistic juices have been flowing in Tallinn for a long time. Even as far back as the 15th century Estonian-born painter Michael Sittow was travelling Europe creating portraits for the Hapsburg royalty. These days contemporary Estonian art and design works are still making their way abroad, but luckily most can be viewed without buying a ticket to Vienna.

Art Museums

The oldest artworks on permanent display in Tallinn, including Bernt Notke's famous, skeletal painting Danse Macabre, can be found at the St. Nicholas' Church (see also page 7), the branch of the Estonian Art Museum that specialises in religious art. But to get the full picture of Tallinn's art offerings, you need to have a wander through other major museums like these:

Kumu Art Museum

Weizenbergi 34 / Valge 1 • www.kumu.ee

This modern facility wedged into a limestone hill at the end of Weizenbergi street is by far Estonia's biggest and newest art museum. The focus here is on Estonian art, which is divided into two eras: 18th century to World War II, and the Soviet period, 1940–1991. Temporary exhibitions display more modern works.

Kadriorg Art Museum – Kadriorg Palace

Weizenbergi 37 • www.kadriorumuseum.ee

Peter the Great's Baroque Palace makes this perfect home for the museum that displays the nation's collection of foreign art. Hundreds of Western European and Russian paintings from the 16th to 20th centuries can be seen here, as can prints, sculptures and other objects.

STANISLAW STERSHKO

Mikkel Museum

Weizenbergi 28 • www.mikkelimuseum.ee

Flemish and Dutch paintings, Italian engravings and Chinese porcelain are among the exquisite works here. Private collector Johannes Mikkel donated them to the Estonian Art Museum in 1994. The stars of the show are four etchings by Rembrandt, including one self-portrait.

Adamson-Eric Museum

Lühike jalg 3 • www.adamson-eric.ee

Located in an Old Town merchant house, this museum specialises in the works of Adamson-Eric (1902–1968), one of the most versatile Estonian artists of the 20th century. Everything from oil paints to furniture design is on display.

Dining Out

Traditional Estonian, cutting edge fusion or maybe something with a Medieval theme... Whatever strikes your mood, you'll easily find an interesting, affordable place to eat in Tallinn. There's no way to list all the choices, but here are some options to start you off. Bon appetite, or as we say in Estonian, head isu!

Estonian cuisine Estonian food, like its people, is a combination of all the best of the nations whom have lived here. It has calmness of the Swedes, the common sense of the Danes, the purposefulness of the Germans and the self-trust of the Russians. Modern Estonian cooking is based on the classical methods of preparing food from raw, fresh produce and from local ecological farms where possible. Modern Estonian menus includes local cheeses, meat and fish. Equally important is home-made bread served with genuine butter decked with salt flakes. Modern Estonian Cuisine is full of contrasts but calm and harmonious by nature.

Estonian beer

If you're looking to sample the Estonian brew, your choices in most pubs are Saku and A. Le Coq, the two major brands that dominate the nation's market. Of the Saku beers, Saku Originaal (Original) is the most common, though the more elite Saku Kuld (Gold) has recently gained popularity with its smoother taste.

SAKU

A. Le Coq's flagship brand is A. Le Coq Premium. Both firms produce several other varieties, including ice beers, which are typically served in a 0.33-litre bottle capped with a lemon slice. Fans of dark beer can try the Saku Tume and A. Le Coq Porter.

A. LE COQ

To expand your beer horizons beyond the big breweries, look for Puls Extra Lager or the unique Wiru Kadakaõlu (juniper beer). A couple Tallinn pubs, namely Hell Hunt and Beer House, also sell their own labels.

Relaxing & Recharging

Thanks to the country's highly developed spa industry, Estonians truly know how to pamper their guests. There are also a number of peaceful park and beach areas around town that are perfect for relaxing strolls, as well as plenty of active, sporty ways to unwind.

The Great Outdoors

MARI KADRIK

There's nothing like fresh air and sunshine to clear your head, and Tallinn has lots of beautiful, wide-open spaces where you can do just that. Visitors who come here within a few weeks of the summer solstice (June 21) have the added bonus of experiencing the "White Nights," when the sun barely sets before midnight and rises again at around 4 a.m.

Parks

You never have to go far to find green areas in Tallinn – the west and south edges of Old Town are bordered by well-maintained parks. These include the park at Tornide väljak (Towers Square) from where there are excellent views of the city's Medieval wall and towers. Just south of here is Snelli Pond, an elongated moat where ducks gather. Next to Toompea Castle you can stroll around Lindamägi (Linda Hill) and Harjumägi (Harju Hill).

Downtown's largest and most famous park is Kadriorg. This vast area of paths, ponds, manicured gardens and fountains is centred around a Baroque palace built by Peter the Great. In 2011 the Kadriorg Park received a truly wonderful addition in form of the Japanese garden designed by renowned landscape designer from Japan, Masao Sone.

For a little education along with your greenery there's also the Estonian Open Air Museum, where traditional villages have been recreated, and the Tallinn Botanic Garden, which covers 123 hectares of land. Both are on the edges of the city.

Seacoast & Beaches

The sea is another key ingredient in Tallinn's natural appeal. A favourite way to experience the beauty of Tallinn Bay is to walk, bike or skate down the paved promenade that runs from Kadriorg toward the Pirita district. Nearly 2km long, the path follows the waterfront, providing views of the rocky shoreline with the cityscape in the distance.

Sand beaches are easy to find and are well developed, but don't expect crashing waves. The geography of the Baltic Sea makes for gentle lapping and, in summer, warm waters. The largest and most popular is Pirita Beach, barely outside the city centre. Suburban beaches like Stroomi Beach and Kakumäe will also fill up on a summer's day. For something a bit more secluded, head a couple kilometres north of the city to Haabneeme, on the Viimsi coast.

Spa

Health spas have been drawing visitors to Estonia ever since the first seaside resorts opened in Pärnu and Haapsalu in the early 1800s. More recently Tallinn itself has been developing as a spa destination and now has many establishments offering health and beauty treatments like hot stone massages, chocolate body wraps and facials.

Spas come in two varieties: spa hotels, which offer 2- to 6-day packages that include accommodation, meals and other services along with a choice of treatments; and day spas, which offer treatments only. For both types, prior booking is essential.

Cycling in Tallinn

The many parks, promenades and lanes in Tallinn make cycling relatively hassle free and very enjoyable especially during the summer months. For easy cycling head to Pirita promenade (page 16) leading to Pirita beach, Rocca al Mare promenade (page 17) leading all the way to Estonian Open Air Museum or Kadriorg park (page 14) which is especially suitable for younger cyclists. Remember the right-hand-side traffic and to wear a helmet (compulsory until the age of 16). There are plenty of cycle lanes in the town and around it which you can see from www.kaart.tallinn.ee. During the warmer season (May-September) free bike parking points open on Freedom Square and in front of Tourist Information Centre.

Bike rentals

There are numerous places around the town to rent a bike; some of them pop out for the summer period only, others are open all year round. If you are not sure where to start looking for a bike ask your accommodation place for some advice. Don't forget to ask for a helmet to go with your bike!

Aegna, Naissaar and Prangli islands

In summer, passenger ferries make regular trips to these three small islands just off the coast of Tallinn. Aegna and Naissaar have military histories stretching back to the Tsarist Russian era. They were part of a tightly-controlled border zone so access to all three islands was restricted during Soviet times. Today the islands are known for their quiet pine forests, secluded beaches, working narrow gauge railway and - for those who are interested - the remnants of its military infrastructure. On the other hand Prangli has maintained its fishing-village culture since the 13th century.

Lahemaa National Park

Lahemaa is a vast national park along Estonia's north coast, about an hour's drive from Tallinn beloved it for its nature and serenity. Mushroom and berry picking are popular. Its main sights are the striking Palmse, Sagadi and Vihula manor houses, the ancient fishing village of Altja, the wealthy Captain's Village of Käsmu, and Viinistu, site of the nation's largest private art collection.

Getting from one to the other is easy (www.ts.ee, www.tallinn-airport.ee). A day in elegant, modern ambience of Helsinki, is an interesting contrast to romantic, Medieval feel of Tallinn. # Shopping

Souvenir hunters, fashion fans and casual browsers can shop to their hearts' content in Tallinn. City centre malls offer an international-style experience, but for boutique shopping, Old Town should be your destination.

What to Buy

Estonian Handicrafts

The most uniquely Estonian souvenirs you can bring home from Tallinn are examples of traditional Estonian handicrafts – beautiful, usually functional items created by hand following centuries-old methods. Knitwear of all types is popular: colourful jumpers, scarves, hats, socks, gloves and mittens can be found in a wide variety of patterns. Linen – both for clothing and for home décor – is also widely sold, as are household items made from leather, stone and wood. Keep a special eye out for products made from juniper wood, typically butter knives, sugar bowls and the like. Their delicate look and strong, sweet fragrance make them great gifts.

A Taste of Estonia

Marzipan

This heavenly confection made from sugar and almond paste has been a favourite Tallinn treat since the Middle Ages. In fact, local legend insists it was invented in Tallinn's famous Town Hall Pharmacy back in Hanseatic times. Nowadays handmade marzipan figurines, usually in the shape of cute, little animals, are available in larger food shops. The most interesting place to buy them however is in the historic Kalev Marzipan Museum Room, where you can watch experts painting the figurines by hand.

Vana Tallinn

Estonia's national liqueur, Vana Tallinn, is a sweet, potent drink that can be found in any alcohol shop. It goes down easy on its own, but is also great when mixed with coffee or dribbled over ice-cream. There are two main varieties: the original, with its rum and citrus flavour, and the newer Vana Tallinn Cream Liqueur.

Music

For music lovers, bringing home a CD of Estonian classics (Arvo Pärt and Erkki-Sven Tüür) is a must, especially if the performance is by the Estonian Philharmonic Chamber Choir.

Recordings of Estonian folk music also make a fine addition to any music collection.

Animation

Film buffs will be glad to hear that Estonia is home to a small but active animation scene. The most famous artist in the field is Priit Pärn, whose surreal, primitive-style works have been winning awards since the 1970s. More recently a series of films by Heiki Ernits and Janno Põldma have become a success: "Tom and Fluffy," "Lotte from Gadgetvill," "Lotte and the Moonstone Secret", and "Ladybird's Christmas." Though the cartoons are made for children, they're loaded with philosophy that adults can appreciate. They're also available on DVD in English.

In addition to the shops listed below, CDs and DVDs of Estonian music and cartoons can be found in Tallinna Kaubamaja and Stockmann department stores.

Travel Information

Visa Regulations

Estonia is part of the Schengen visa free area. Passengers arriving from other Schengen countries won't go through customs and immigration checks at the border, but are still required to carry valid travel documents, either a passport or, in the case of EU citizens, a national ID card.

Anyone arriving from outside the Schengen zone will be required to show those same documents at the border.

Nationals of EU and EEA member states can freely enter Estonia. The required travel document is a national ID card or a passport.

For more specific information, please contact your nearest Estonian consulate or embassy, or check the Estonian Ministry of Foreign Affairs' website, www.mfa.ee.

Customs

In order to avoid misunderstandings it is recommended that you learn about the requirements of your country of destination before you travel and ask for any necessary information from local customs authorities.

You can get further information from www.customs.ee.

KIRSTI EERIK

Currency & Exchange

Since January 2011, Estonia has been using the euro (EUR) as its national currency. Each euro is made up of 100 cents. Other currencies can easily be exchanged in banks and exchange offices.

Most larger hotels, stores and restaurants accept Visa, MasterCard, Eurocard, Diners Club and American Express; however, it is advisable to carry some euros with you.

Banks are plentiful and easy to find in Tallinn. Most are open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays, while some offices are also open on Saturday mornings. All banks offer currency exchange services. Exchange offices can also be found in larger hotels, the airport, harbour, railroad station and major shopping centres.

Communications

To call Tallinn from abroad, dial your international access code and 372 for Estonia and then the telephone number.

Within Estonia, you can make local and international calls from any phone. To call abroad, dial 00 and the country code.

The same GSM mobile phones used throughout Europe will also work in Estonia; please check with your operator for roaming charges and compatibility.

Internet

Public Internet access points have been set up all over Estonia. They are located in local libraries and post offices. All hotels, conference centres, as well as the airport, shopping malls, downtown cafés, restaurants, and public parks offer public Wi-Fi. Tallinn Tourist Information Centre offers free public Wi-Fi.

By Air

Lennart Meri Tallinn Airport

Located just 4km from the Tallinn City centre, the newly-refurbished Lennart Meri Tallinn Airport provides excellent facilities and a wide variety of services to meet the demands of all its customers.

Free Wi-Fi is available throughout the passenger terminal. Skype booth is also available at the airport.

Information at the airport

An information desk operates in the airport's departure hall. It opens 2 hours before the first flight of the day and closes after the last arriving flight.

ph. +372 605 8888

Flights start in august 2013.
ph. +372 610 1818 • www.copterline.com

By Sea

For Estonia's neighbours, sea travel is the most widely-used method of reaching Tallinn, with over 7 million passengers making their way through the Port of Tallinn each year. The vast majority of them come via the Tallinn-Helsinki sea-lane, one of the busiest international passenger routes in the world. Passengers arrive at the modern and well-equipped Old City Harbour or the adjacent Linnahall, both located in the city centre.

Main Routes

Ferries cross the Gulf of Finland between Tallinn and Helsinki several times a day, covering the distance in two to four hours, depending on the ship. From late spring to late autumn, high-speed vessels also operate on the route, reducing travel time to just an hour and a half. Ferries between Tallinn and Stockholm depart every evening, with the trip taking approximately 15 hours. St. Petersburg – Tallinn – Stockholm – Tallinn – St. Petersburg cruise line ferry visits Tallinn twice a week on Sundays and on Tuesdays. A trip between Tallinn and St. Petersburg takes approximately 8 hours.

Terminals

The Old City Harbour's passenger terminals, lettered A through D, as well as the Linnahall, are located a short distance from the Medieval Old Town.

Passenger information at the harbour:
ph. +372 631 8550 • www.portoftallinn.com

A-terminal serves Viking Line and Eckerö Line ferries to Helsinki and St Peter Line ferry to/from St. Petersburg.

B-terminal serves Viking Line and Eckerö Line ferries from Helsinki.

D-terminal serves Tallink's high-speed vessels and ferries to/from Helsinki, and Tallink ferries to/from Stockholm.

Linnahall terminal serves Linda Line's high-speed vessels to/from Helsinki

From the harbour to the city

Bus no 2 stops in front of A- and D-terminals. Tickets cost 1.60 EUR (free with Tallinn Card). A taxi from the port to other locations in the city centre costs about 5 EUR. Because the harbour is so central, many arriving passengers prefer to walk.

Cruises

Most of the cruise lines touring in Northern Europe now include Tallinn in their itineraries, and the city receives over 300 calls per cruise season – a truly remarkable achievement by European standards. The Old City Harbour can accommodate cruise vessels of over 300m in length. For further information: www.portoftallinn.com.

Tallinn also participates in the Cruise Baltic network:

Tallinn Central Bus Station

Lastekodu 46 • ph. +372 12550

International bus lines, as well as most lines connecting Tallinn with other cities in Estonia, arrive at and depart from Tallinn's Central Bus Station, located in the city centre.

From the bus station to the city

Take tram no 2 or 4, or bus no 17A, 23 or 23A. A taxi from the bus station to the city centre costs about 5 EUR.

Public Transport

Buses, trolleys, trams

Buses, trolleys and trams operate regularly from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. A smart-card and e-ticket system is in place in Tallinn. A single journey tickets at 1.60 Euros can be bought from the driver directly.

Smartcards are on sale in post offices, R-kiosks, larger shop-chains and at Tallinn City Council customer service desk (Vabaduse väljak 7). You need to pay 2 Euro deposit for your new smartcard.

Tallinn Card holders travel free on public transport. Validate your Tallinn Card by touching the orange card readers (at all entrances) at the start of each journey.

When planning no more than 3 journeys on public transport use the single journey tickets costing 1.60 Euros. You can purchase the tickets from the driver directly when entering at the front door.

If you plan more than 3 journeys on public transport it is cheaper for you to get the plastic (non-registered) smartcard. This smartcard is easy to top up with money or travel cards and then to validate your e-ticket(s) at the start of each journey. One smartcard can be used by different people. Top up your smartcard at different sales points (listed at www.pilet.ee).

Travel free on public transport when:

- You have a valid Tallinn Card. Validate your Tallinn Card at the start of each journey!
- You are child under school age
- You are an adult travelling with under 3 year old child
- You are a registered Tallinner and you have the registered smartcard. Note that you still need to validate your smartcard at the start of every journey.

Taxis

Taxi stands are located at major intersections and in front of larger hotels. Passengers can choose from any of the available taxis at a taxi stand. Taxis can be also ordered by phone or hailed on the street.

The price list for taxi services is determined by the taxi operator and includes the flag fare, the per-kilometre charge and the waiting charge.

Before getting in

Be sure you understand the approximate cost of the trip. Prices are not uniform; taxi operators can set their own rates. Take a close look at the yellow price list, which is posted on the right side rear door.

The rates:

1. the base fare (usually 2.50 – 4 EUR);
2. the waiting charge, used only when the taxi is actually standing (usually 9.50 – 16 EUR/hr);
3. the per-kilometre charges: a daytime charge used from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m., and a nighttime charge used from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. (both usually 0.50 – 1 EUR/km).

Anything much more than these is considered high.

Make sure the taxi driver holds an operator's card – a white plastic card with the driver's photo and name, attached to the middle of the dashboard.

Starting out

Make sure the taxi's meter is turned on. It is illegal for the driver to smoke or to allow others to smoke in the taxi.

At the end of the ride

The driver is not allowed to ask for more than what is on the meter. The driver must be paid in euros. Ask the taxi driver for a receipt from the meter's printer. If the meter or printer is out of order, the driver should not be in service and you have the right to refuse to pay the fare.

By Car

Parking

Parking on streets in the city centre, the Old Town and the Pirita area must be paid for. Nearly all locals simply pay for their parking via SMS message, but newcomers should follow these guidelines:

Cars should display a sign (usually a clock) on their dashboards indicating

Accommodation

Accommodation

A wide range of accommodation is available in Tallinn, and the number of choices grows yearly. Options range from upmarket business hotels to budget sleepovers; from historic, Old Town settings to plush, brand-new buildings in prime locations. There are also plenty of secluded establishments on the outskirts of town. Registered accommodation in Tallinn is high quality, since the minimum standards here are more stringent than the European average. Advance booking directly from accommodation establishment or through a travel agency is essential for the busy period of May to September, but it is also strongly recommended at any time of year.

Nearly all hotels accept major credit cards. Rates are quoted per room, not per person, and as a rule prices include breakfast and tax.

Description of accommodation types:

Hotel - an establishment of at least 10 rooms that corresponds to high standards and offers dining service (restaurant).

Guesthouse - an establishment of at least 5 rooms, which offers dining service.

Hostel - a simple establishment for holiday, sport or study visitors, which offers dining or cooking facilities.

Guest apartment - an establishment with food-preparing facilities, which is rented out in entirety.

Bed & Breakfast - accommodation service at a house, apartment or private farm, which includes breakfast.

Camping site - an establishment providing limited accommodation service, that has cottages and/or enclosed areas for tents and/or caravans, parking lot and cooking facilities.
